More precautions ordered as Indiana, Kentucky see 1st COVID-19 deaths, cases in Floyd, Barthlomew

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

As far as anyone knows, it's not here yet, but local government officials are taking additional steps to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

Members of the public had their temperatures taken before entering Monday's Trimble County Fiscal Court meeting and were spaced a few feet apart as magistrates discussed how they could mitigate the spread of the virus there. So far, steps include conducting criminal court hearings via video and not allowing public access to court Tuesday, and potentially reducing visitors to one area of the courthouse, Sheriff Charlie Kelton said.

Elsewhere in the county, the City of Milton and Trimble County Water District No. 1 have closed their lobbies until further notice and asked residents to make payments using the dropbox outside, online or over the phone.

Officials at Monday's meeting said they didn't expect a community as isolated as Trimble County to have many coronavirus cases, but Kelton said his pager would be busy over the next few weeks due to residents self-quarantining inside.

"There's going to be people staying in with each other, and that always causes an influx of call volume," Kelton said.

Health officials so far have detected 21 cases of COVID-19 in Kentucky and 24 in Indiana, with cases recently announced in Floyd and Bartholomew counties in Indiana and Jefferson County in Kentucky.

Both states also announced their first deaths Monday — in Marion County in Indiana and Fayette County in Kentucky. The Kentucky victim was actually a resident of Bourbon County.

While no cases have yet been confirmed in Jefferson County, Indiana, all county school districts, including Madison, Southwestern, Prince of Peace, Madison Christian Academy and Canaan Community Academy, announced precautionary, three-week closures Friday and are requiring students to complete work online or using take-home packets. Only 16 school corporations in Indiana remained open as of Monday, the state said in a release.

Ivy Tech Community College also announced Monday that it will switch to online courses for the remainder of the current semester. Courses will restart March 23 and conclude May 16, all being offered virtually.

Also closed to the general public are the Jefferson County Courthouse and Annex buildings starting Tuesday, the county said in a press release Monday. Court hearings will be rescheduled and access to departments will be by appointment-only. Those with court documents, protective orders or other other paperwork that need to be dropped off at the courthouse can leave them at a dropbox at the front of the building.

Fire guts SR 7 barn, but fi emen save tractor

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

Firefighters from Dupont, Madison Township and Rykers Ridge fire departments battled a barn fire in the 6400 block of SR 7 on Sunday afternoon.

The fire was reported at 3:24 p.m. and when first firefighters arrived they discovered heavy smoke coming from a blaze that apparently started in the attic above a workshop located within the building.

The blaze proved difficult to battle due to lack of access to the area — the only entry was a one-square-foot opening to the attic — and blown-in insulation complicated the task of getting water to the source of the fire. Firefighters attacked the blaze on the interior of the structure at first but later withdrew once the roof of the building started sagging.

"It was in kind of a loft or attic and the insulation made it a real problem to get water onto it," said Dupont Volunteer Fire Chief George Canfield. "I'd say it was a total loss because the roof was falling in. The cause is still under investigation."

Madison Township Volunteer Fire Department was first to arrive at the scene and was able to move to safety an antique tractor that was stored in the structure. The property owner, Richard Cart, had restored the Oliver 2255 and it was a prized possession. A combine Cart was in the process of restoring could not be removed from the structure but firefighters were able to prevent it from being damaged even though much of the building was gutted.

Firefighters hauled water to the site throughout the blaze to refill a portable dump tank that was used to feed pumps. Traffic was stopped on SR 7 at various times during the fire because the prevailing wind carried heavy smoke across nearby roadway.

The cause of the blaze is still under investigation.

Floyd man who tested positive attended Seymour sectional

By THE REPUBLIC (COLUMBUS)

FLOYD COUNTY — A Floyd County resident who recently attended the Class 4A boys basketball sectional at Seymour has tested positive for the coronavirus (COVID-19), the Floyd County Health Department announced Sunday afternoon.

County Health Officer Dr. Tom Harris made the announcement before media assembled at the Pine View Government Center, according to The News and Tribune of Jeffersonville.

The patient was admitted to Baptist Health Floyd on March 13, and the positive test result was confirmed around 2 p.m. Sunday. Harris decline to give the age or where the person lives and said it is not known which game or games they attended.

Lin Montgomery with the Jackson County Health Department said investigations will need to be completed to determine who might have been exposed to the person.

The patient is currently in isolation and all recommended precautions are being taken to protect the patient and staff, according to a statement Baptist Health Floyd. The medical team is evaluating and monitoring the progress of this patient in close collaboration with the local and state health officials.

Indiana United Way announces coronavirus relief fund

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — United Way of Central Indiana has announced a $16.5 million relief fund intended to aid people and families facing economic distress amid the coronavirus pandemic. The chapter said Friday the new fund was being launched with a $15 million donation from Lilly Endowment Inc. that will help human services organizations aid those affected both directly and indirectly by the coronavirus, which causes the disease COVID-19. Grants from the Central Indiana COVID-19 Community Economic Relief Fund will be strategically distributed to organizations in Boone, Hamilton, Hancock, Hendricks, Marion and Morgan counties. The speed of the coronavirus' spread and the measures needed to combat its further spread will cause significant disruptions of daily life, calling for us "to act swiftly and strategically," said Ann Murtlow, president and CEO of United Way of Central Indiana. "This coronavirus is not just a health crisis. It is also an economic one — the depth and magnitude of which is uncertain," Murtlow said in a statement. The relief fund has also received $500,000 contributions each from the Richard M. Fairbanks Foundation, the Eli Lilly and Company Foundation and United Way of Central Indiana, with pledges of support from other groups. United Way said it will also be seeking donations from other organizations and individuals.

Students hold snap graduation due to virus

RICHMOND — Earlham College seniors held their own snap graduation event, shortly before the school's ban on face-to-face classes and campus gatherings to combat the spread of the coronavirus. The hour-long commencement Friday at the private college may have lacked the usual festivities of graduation day. But it still had caps and gowns, poetry, music, student stories, faculty reflections — and premature degrees. "Seniors took lemons and made lemonade by deciding to hold a graduation ceremony for themselves," Earlham President Anne Houtman said. Seniors organized the ceremony after Houtman canceled all face-to-face classes and events, including sports, starting Friday. Indiana colleges have extended spring breaks, canceled classroom instruction and taken other steps in the coronavirus crisis. Vi Tran, a global management major from Oak Park, Illinois, who helped arrange the impromptu commencement, said Houtman's announcement produced a "whole level of somberness" on the Richmond campus. Tran said fast action was needed "because the likelihood that all of us would be back for graduation was really low." Houtman said the steps she announced to combat the virus were "very painful, yet nothing for me compared to what it meant or our seniors" as well as other Earlham students. Earlham is near the Indiana-Ohio state line, about 65 miles (104 kilometers) east of Indianapolis.

Partnership aims to preserve historic sites

INDIANAPOLIS — A new partnership financed by memorial funds endowed by Eli Lilly and Co.'s first black chemist has set its sights on preserving some of Indiana's significant African American landmarks. Standiford "Stan" Cox, who died in February 2019, worked for Indianapolis-based Lilly for 32 years in a variety of positions after becoming the drugmaker's first black chemist in 1957. The Brazil, Indiana, native was a generous advocate for preserving African American heritage sites, and he established two funds with the Central Indiana Community Foundation — one in his name and one honoring his parents. Those funds are the basis with the foundation's new partnership with Indiana Landmarks that will provide grants to help preserve historic African American sites. The statewide group will serve as a key preservation adviser to the funds while an Indiana Landmarks committee will identify significant places and evaluate projects the program could assist. The initial recommendations will be announced in late March, based in part on sites' architectural and/or historical significance, opportunities for redevelopment and the threat of demolition. "Stan Cox has left an incredible legacy to the people of Indiana," said Mark Dollase, Vice President of Preservation Services at Indiana Landmarks. "We are honored to work with the Central Indiana Community Foundation in a partnership that will aid in the restoration of important African American landmarks for years to come."

Lawmakers OK bill cementing lake ruling

INDIANAPOLIS — Lawmakers have passed legislation to embrace a landmark state Supreme Court decision affirming that the Lake Michigan shoreline is publicly owned and open to all for recreation. The General Assembly gave its final approval Wednesday to the bill, which covers the core holdings of the court's 2018 ruling, including that the shoreline is held in trust for use by all Indiana residents. The measure was approved 78-15 in the House, and 36-13 by the Senate. It confirms that Hoosiers have a right to use the shoreline for walking, fishing, boating, swimming and any other recreational purpose, and that adjacent private property owners are not entitled to exclusive use of the beach or the water, The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported. The bill explicitly declares that Indiana's 45 miles of Lake Michigan shore is owned by the state up to the ordinary high-water mark, which is the shoreline created by water fluctuations. It now goes to Gov. Eric Holcomb. The Supreme Court rejected a claim that deeds showing property lines running into the lake are valid. The legislation also includes a provision that could help Indiana communities deal with erosion during a time of high water along Lake Michigan. Local governments in an emergency situation must approve or reject permits for seawall work within 10 days. Otherwise, the permit automatically is approved. "This bill is a first step in providing a little relief to the dire situation along the lakefront," said Sen. Karen Tallian, D-Ogden Dunes.

I&M rate increase less than half utility sought

FORT WAYNE — Indiana regulators have given Indiana Michigan Power approval for a rate increase that's less than half the amount the utility had sought for its Hoosier customers. The Fort Wayne-based utility said Thursday that the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission had approved allowing I&M to increase electricity rates by 5.7% overall, for an increase totaling about $84 million. That amount is about 48% of I&M's original request. A typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity would pay about $10 more per month. I&M had requested a 11.75% rate hike for its Indiana customers that would have resulted in those customers paying about $21 a month more. The newly-approved rate increase will be phased in until early next year, The Journal Gazette reported. After the utility sought the increase last May, consumers and businesses raised concerns about I&M's need for another increase, coming after a hike approved in 2018 allowed it to raise rates 7.26% to help pay for replacing aging poles and wires and removing trees. In August, the Indiana Office of Utility Consumer Counselor announced it was recommending denial of substantial portions of I&M's requested rate hike. "I&M is a financially sound utility," Consumer Counselor Bill Fine said in a statement then, adding that the utility's 2018 increase appeared to be sufficient to cover the company's needs. I&M has more than 600,000 customers in Indiana and Michigan. Michigan regulators approved a separate rate increase in January.

RV industry hopes for minimal virus impact

ELKHART — The RV industry is watching what kind of impact the coronavirus may have on the market. Wayne Kaylor, CEO of Way Interglobal Network in Elkhart, said there's been some disruptions due to COVID-19, and the industry should know in the next several weeks whether the coronavirus shock will leave lingering issues. Elkhart County is the epicenter of the RV industry, the South Bend Tribune reported. Kaylor's company supplies consumer electronics, appliances and other items to the RV industries. "By blind luck, we've been fairly unscathed," said Kaylor. Many of the factories in China that temporarily closed in the wake of the virus outbreak are starting production again. But even then, there are still concerns about transportation and whether finished products will make it to their destination. For most people, the new coronavirus causes only mild or moderate symptoms, such as fever and cough. For some, especially older adults and people with existing health problems, it can cause more severe illness, including pneumonia. The vast majority of people recover from the virus. According to the World Health Organization, people with mild illness recover in about two weeks, while those with more severe illness may take three to six weeks to recover. Kaylor says this is a time for the industry to work together to avoid slowdowns for RV manufacturers.

Ogden Dunes to spend $150K for repairs

OGDEN DUNES — An Indiana town along Lake Michigan has approved spending $150,000 for expert input and emergency repairs to protect homes from sliding into the water. It could take up to $10 million to rebuild the seawall that is meant to protect homes on the east side of Ogden Dunes, according to Rodger Howell, who heads a beach protection committee. In the meantime, officials and homeowners in the town about 25 miles southeast of Chicago are scrambling for a short-term relief. Residents of Ogden Dunes have already filed a federal lawsuit over its battle with shoreline erosion. "Homes could actually suffer damage in the next storm or two," said Howell, according to The (Northwest Indiana) Times. "Something's going to fail really bad in the next storm or two." During recent high waves the sheet metal "was just flapping in the waves like a piece of tin foil in the wind." Even though the barrier protects both town property and private homes, the work has historically been paid for by residents. But Roger Rhodes, the town's assistant building commissioner, worries residents may not be able to afford the work for long. Town officials have discussed other funding options, fur Councilwoman Carolyn Saxton suggested the town could pay for the repairs and be reimbursed by homeowners. The town currently has enough money in two funds to cover the urgent repairs, said Jenna Manna, who serves as clerk and treasurer.

Gov. Beshear tests negative for coronavirus

FRANKFORT — Gov. Andy Beshear said Sunday he has tested negative for the new coronavirus after attending a public event in Louisville where another individual tested positive. Beshear said his test results came back Saturday. He didn't specify the location of the event or when it occurred. His office said Kentucky now has 21 positive cases, up three from a day earlier. They range in age from 27 to 80. Also Sunday, Kentucky Democratic U.S. Rep. John Yarmuth said he will self-quarantine at home this week and is awaiting test results after being in the presence of someone last week who has since tested positive for the coronavirus. Beshear said he was disappointed to learn about large gatherings in Kentucky at a time when schools and senior centers are closing temporarily to avoid the spread of the virus, nursing homes are restricting visitors and most court proceedings are being postponed. He also criticized people who buy large amounts of supplies and clear store shelves, leaving nothing for others to purchase. "Fear can cause so much more harm than this virus ever will," Beshear said. For most people, the new coronavirus causes only mild or moderate symptoms, such as fever and cough. For some, especially older adults and people with existing health problems, it can cause more severe illness, including pneumonia. The vast majority of people recover from the new virus.

Police investigate fatal shooting of girl, 3

LOUISVILLE — A 3-year-old girl was fatally shot at a home in Louisville. Officers found the child suffering from gunshot wounds after being called to the home Sunday afternoon, Louisville police spokesman Dwight Mitchell told news outlets. She was taken to a hospital, where she was pronounced dead. It wasn't clear who was at home with the girl when the shooting happened, but Mitchell said he didn't think she was home alone. He said it was too early to say whether charges could be filed.

Officer serving warrant wounded, woman killed

LOUISVILLE — A wounded police officer is expected to recover after being shot during a drug investigation that left one person dead Friday. Detectives were serving a warrant at an apartment in Louisville when they were fired upon, Metro Police Assistant Chief Joshua Judah told news outlets. The officers returned fire, he said. One officer, Sgt. John Mattingly, was shot in the leg and taken to the University of Louisville Hospital. Lt. Ted Eidem, a public relations officer, said Mattingly is expected to fully recover. Mattingly and two other officers were fired on after forcing entry into the apartment around 12:40 a.m. A suspect, Kenneth Walker, left the apartment and surrendered. He was charged with attempted murder of a police officer, Eidem said. A woman inside the apartment was pronounced dead at the scene. Eidem said police are still investigating "what her involvement was." Mattingly and two other officers were placed on administrative leave while police investigate the shooting.

Constable charged in shooting of FBI agent

SOMERSET — A constable involved in a shooting with FBI agents has been charged with aggravated assault of a law enforcement officer. Agents were going to arrest Gary Baldock and another Pulaski County constable earlier this month when Baldock, 56, opened fire. Federal agents were seeking to arrest the two men March 6 on federal warrants for conspiracy to violate criminal rights. One agent was injured during the shooting. Baldock was also hit when agents returned fire. WLEX-TV reports special agent David Lowry wrote in a criminal complaint that agents showed up wearing clothing identifying themselves as law enforcement and had the emergency lights on their vehicles activated. While Wallace surrendered, Lowry says Baldock opened fire on the agents. Baldock is also facing a charge of discharging a firearm during a crime of violence. A federal indictment brought against the men said they conspired to "injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate" people in Pulaski County and deprived them of their constitutional right "to be free from unreasonable search and seizures."

Public Works OKs Rumpke waste, recycling contract

Rumpke to invest $750,000 in city's transfer station

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

Madison's Board of Public Works approved a 10-year renewal of the city's contract with Rumpke for waste disposal and recycling services at Monday's meeting at Madison City Hall.

Under terms of the deal, Madison will use Rumpke as its waste and recycling hauler for the next 10 years with Rumpke investing about $750,000 in the city of Madison's solid waste transfer station that will allow the company to better compact trash and reduce the number of trucks and trips needed to haul trash to landfills with the city passing those savings on to residential customers in the form of lower rate increases.

The city's current contract with Rumpke was scheduled to expire at the end of the month with Rumpke proposing new terms that would range from about a 15% to 50% rate increase for residential customers — who currently pay on average about $40-$45 monthly in the city for combined trash, recycling, water and sewage services — depending on whether the city allowed the company to upgrade the transfer station or continue to operate as in the past.

Rumpke currently has three compactors at the transfer station but based on their location and ability to reduce trash volume, the company wanted to take those out and install four new higher efficiency compactors on a higher platform that will allow trucks to be more easily loaded. Rumpke will pay for the upgrades, to be phased in over the next several months, with the older units remaining in use until the newer units are online with no disruption of service for both city garbage trucks or people utilizing the service with their own private vehicles.

Mayor Bob Courtney said with proceeds from the city's recycling program all but dried up, the city needed to be open to ways to reduce the cost of trash and recycling pickup for customers. He said by signing a 10-year contract and allowing Rumpke to upgrade its equipment, the city could lessen the impact on customers with Rumpke picking up the cost of the upgrades.

The new compactors will cost Rumpke about $190,000 per unit, but will still save the company operating costs in the long run by making fewer trips to the landfill and by making trucks more easy to load.

Even though recycling no longer produces much of a reimbursement in the form of materials sale, Courtney said the city remains committed to recycling.

"It's a great benefit to our city," the mayor said, noting his goal is for a "cleaner, greener community" and that the monthly fees passed on to customers is fair when compared to what some other communities charge for waste hauling.

Rumpke's Tom Trimble said Madison currently produces about 641 tons of sold waste per month and about 56 tons of recycling.

"There's not anybody going to get rich from recycling anymore, but you have the potential to get some money back," Trimble said, noting that while the foreign market for recyclables has gone away and there are fewer places in the U.S. that buy and use recyclables, Rumpke is starting to see a stronger market for cardboard and has one of the few plants that buys glass in Dayton, Ohio.

"I think people who want a green society realize you've got to pay for it," Trimble said, later adding "that's a lot of recycling being diverted from our landfills."

While the city's rate increase to customers has been forecast at about 15%, Courtney said he hopes other cost-saving measures can be implemented to reduce that increase even more.

He said solid waste and recycling is just the first phase of an overall project to reassess what the city spends and passes along to customers in usage fees and taxes in a variety of areas.

He wants to look at what services can be done better and cheaper and said the next area on the list is water and sewage "but we're going to study them all."

In other business:

— The Board of Public Works approved two requests by the Madison Police Department including one to purchase and make mandatory the wearing of body cameras while on duty.

— The Board also heard requests to close streets for a Vintage Bike Show, a Broadway Street Dance and a construction project at Lydia Middleton Elementary.

announced Monday it was suspending all nursing services, including immunizations for both Tuesday walk-in clinics and scheduled appointments on Thursdays, walk-in STD testing on Wednesday afternoons, and its car seat program on Wednesday mornings. The department will review the situation next week and decide to continue the suspension or resume normal services, it said.

"We would like to stress that this is simply due to the overwhelming amount of time our nursing staff are having to dedicate to COVID-19 activities. We are not attempting to limit visitors to our office who are seeking other department related services," the release said.

The health department is also asking anyone in Jefferson County who has recently traveled to China, South Korea, Iran, the Schengen Area of Europe, the United Kingdom and Ireland to stay at home at least 14 days after the time they leave that country, practice social distancing and monitor their symptoms.

The Jefferson County Public Library also closed Monday and will not reopen before April 6. All due dates for books and library materials have been suspended through April 26, the library said Monday.

King's Daughters' Health announced Friday it was screening visitiors and asking any who showed symptoms or had been in contact with a person or location testing positive for COVID-19 to return home and call a doctor if their condition worsened.

To further prevent the spread, Gov. Eric Holcomb announced new recommendations Monday asking that citizens not congregate in groups of more than 50 people, that hospitals and surgical centers cancel and/or postpone elective and non-urgent surgical procedures immediately and for bars, nightclubs and restaurants to close dining rooms and provide take-out and/or delivery services only through the end of March. By Monday afternoon, restaurants in Madison were already following that directive.

Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear ordered restaurants and bars shut down in similar fashion earlier on Monday, allowing them to only serve take-out starting at 5 p.m.

Monday's orders in both states will have an impact on local restaurants, bars and businesses and the employees who work there as well as those who rely on dine-in services. The Madison Area Chamber of Commerce issued a statement Friday after Holcomb's order encouraging residents to buy gift gards for local businesses and for business-owners to share tips and resources on the Chamber's Member Facebook page. The Chamber also said it was canceling events through April 15.

"The next few weeks will be a unique time for us as a community. It will likely be particularly difficult for our small business owners and their employees who rely on all of us to participate in local commerce. Our businesses are resilient, but they need our help. If you have opportunities to buy local, strongly consider it. Once we're back to business as usual, make a concerted effort to spend your dollars in Jefferson County. Shop here, eat here, and tip well. While there is likely to be some disruption in all of our lives over the coming weeks, if we come together we can minimize the impact and help each other through a once in a lifetime challenge," Executive Director Lindsey Bloos said.

Further up the river in Vevay, Belterra Casino and Resort was among the Indiana casinos ordered closed until March 30 by the Indiana Gaming Commission on Saturday.

The closure will impact all public operations, including the casino, restaurants, hotel, convention space, golf course and spa, Marketing Manager Raschel Springer said.

The Lide White Boys and Girls Club in Madison will remain open, however, with a maximum capacity of 75 children, all of whom will be screened before allowed in. The Jefferson County Health Department had planned to close the club after end of business Monday but determined there was a need for daycare options after meeting with public health officials, Mayor Bob Courtney's office, county officials and a member of the Indiana Family Social Services Administration, according to a release.

The health department is urging families who have other childcare options available to utilize those and leave the Boys and Girls Club open for children in need.

The virus is also having an apparent impact on those who need blood due to canceled blood drives around Indiana. The Versiti Blood Center of Indiana announced that as of 11 p.m. Friday, 52 local blood drives had been canceled in Indiana for March and April, resulting in the loss of 1,336 units of blood. Versiti has seven blood centers around the state and said it has heightened cleaning and disinfecting procedures in response to the virus.

"Donors and our blood drive sponsors should be reassured that attending organized blood drives is safe," said Tom Abshire, Versiti's chief medical officer. "Coronavirus is currently not known to infect patients through blood transfusions."

GIRLS BASKETBALL PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Intangibles, not skills, set Madison's Nutley apart

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

Everybody knows that Jade Nutley can play ball. Ever since she was a little girl she has been the best player on her team and has drawn the eyes of college scouts for years.

But it's more than Nutley's skills that set her apart. It's also the leadership, knowledge and desire to get better that has made the Madison Consolidated High School junior one of the best players in southeastern Indiana.

"She's a great player. She's one of those players that loves to come in and work, not just during practice but before practice and after practice," Madison coach Sonja Bowyer said. "That says what kind of player you are. If you're willing to work outside of the season, not just in the season, that's coachable. She's always thinking about the game."

Nutley showcased all of her skills during an impressive junior campaign and she was the easy pick for this year's Madison Courier Girls Basketball Player of the Year.

At 6-foot-1, Nutley is a force inside and can dominate foes on the low block. But it's her ability to see the floor, shoot the jumper and get the ball to the rim that puts her on a different level.

"Coming off my sophomore year I was super excited about coming back and playing," Nutley said. "I think our first few games it took a bit more adjusting to get me back into the flow of things, but after it got started, I was really happy with the way the season turned out."

Nutley averaged just under 15 points a game and has both the career scoring and rebounding records at Madison well within her sight. She will enter her senior season with 966 career points, just 585 points off Brittney Myers' school record, and 670 career rebounds, which is 250 behind Olivia Crozier's career record. It's possible that she could end up not only with both records, but with over 1,000 in each.

Not that Nutley cares about records. Always the consummate teammate, she has always valued wins over individual numbers.

"She's very, very down to Earth. She doesn't showboat, she's not the type of player that talks trash," Bowyer said. "She's the type of player that does what the team needs and she's one of the players who has realized that she doesn't need to go out and score 30 points. We're doing it as a team. We're winning as a team and losing as a team."

Nutley has been a Madison Courier First Team selection in each of her first two seasons but, ironically, it was an injury last summer that took her game to another level.

Hobbled with a bad ankle, Nutley spent Madison's summer basketball schedule watching games rather than playing and her coach said that experience brought a new dimension to her star's game.

"With her being on the bench and getting to see that side of it, it allowed her to see all sides of the game, not just her part," Bowyer said. "There were certain situations during the summer where she was talking to the players about needing to shoot it with enough time to get a rebound, just thinking that way. If she can vocalize that on the floor, that's just huge as a coach to have somebody who is that smart and can communicate it to other players on the floor."

For Nutley, the biggest adjustment has been finding the perfect balance between being an inside presence and an all-around player. While she

TOP COACH: Southwestern's Devin Brierly is the coach of the year for the second time in three years. (Courier file photo by David Campbell)

Although no local team won a postseason tournament, this season has to be considered one of the more successful ones in the area for girls basketball in some time.

Four of the five Courierarea teams posted double-digit wins with the fifth winning eight games and all five posted their best season in at least three years. That's even more impressive when one considers that of the top 20 scorers in the area, only seven were seniors.

No team had a greater jump than Southwestern, which went 16-8 on the season and almost completely reversed its 7-16 record from a year earlier. The Rebels opened the season with a close win and kept winning, starting the year 10-2 and posted their best season record since 2007-08.

Devin Brierly, who was the star of that 2008 Southwestern squad, is now in her third year as coach at her alma mater and was named The Madison Courier Coach of the Year for the second time in three seasons.

Southwestern senior Bella Marcum was named Defensive Player of the Year after an impressive season in which she tortured opposing ballhandlers. No where was that better on display than in a late-season win over South Ripley where she claimed six steals in the first half.

Despite a six-game difference between them, Switzerland County senior Aleiah Thomas and Trimble County junior Shelby Wilcoxson finished in a dead-heat for the scoring plays in the middle for Madison, once she gets to college she will be more of a small forward. As a result, she has been trying to develop those other skills that she will need in order to succeed.

It's not been easy adjusting to the two roles, but Nutley is getting better at it every time she steps on the floor.

"It depends on who you're playing, if it needs to be more of an outside or inside game. It's a different game playing against Jeffersonville's Nan (Garcia) or playing against someone from New Washington," Nutley said. "It's a different game for me as well as the team. I come in with a different expectation every game, depending upon who the opponent is."

"Finding that balance is something that is going to take a while. I think we found a better balance this year. She's got a great outside shot and she's got a great drive, but she just needs to have confidence in what she's doing," Bowyer said. "She's proven that when she wants to, she can get on the block and go. There are certain plays that we draw up for her and she just goes and does it. Having that confidence in knowing when to do things, when to go to the block or when we need an outside shot, I think she's developed that. She's going to be a senior next year and she knows when we need a three and when we need to dump it down inside."

She's also had to deal with her growing reputation. She spent most of the season dealing with double teams and on one memorable occasion, was even triple-teamed nearly the entire game.

"I honestly didn't even realize that I was getting triple-teamed until one point I turned around and I'm like, I can't even get out of this," Nutley said, laughing. "I had posted up on the block and I literally had three girls on me. I can't even do anything. I was spinning in circles and there was no place to go."

But it's facing players like the Penn State-bound Garcia that drive Nutley to greater heights. While she admits that it is "nerve-wracking" to play in front of Division I scouts, she has had some of her best games in those situations.

"I'd rather not know that they're there, but at the same time I would like to know that they're there because it's like a mind game," Nutley said. "At the New Washington game, I knew Xavier was going to be there and I wanted to set some goals for myself that I should set all of the time, not just when coaches are there. It's what you do when people aren't looking rather than when they are looking."

Nutley has had her share of Division I suitors and says that she is nowhere near a decision. She plans to use this summer to improve her skills and hopes to make a choice by the fall.

In the meantime she's excited about what her Cubs can do next season. Although the team loses two starters to graduation off a 14-win club, Madison has plenty coming back and a strong freshman class coming in. Nutley knows that the only thing that is missing is confidence.

"If we come in knowing that we can win, we could have won six more games this year, definitely," Nutley said. "I think a lot of it is just in our heads. I feel like if we come in with the right mindset, we can compete with anyone. We proved ourselves with a lot of teams."

championship at 16.5 points per game. Trimble County's Emma Ginn started all 28 games she played and became the fourth Lady Raider to earn Freshman of Year honors.

Player of the Year Jade Nutley of Madison is joined on the Courierarea First Team by Marcum, Thomas, Wilcoxson and Southwestern junior Ellie Foley.

The Lady Cubs, who won 14 games, also had three players named on the Second Team including senior Paige Young, junior Lundun Perry and sophomore Taylor Lynch. Shawe senior Grace McAllister and Southwestern junior Ashton Goode were also Second Teamers.

It was a down year in scoring across the board with only five players — Thomas, Wilcoxson, Nutley, Foley and Marcum — averaging in double-digits for the season and Thomas' and Wilcoxson's 16.5 average was the lowest by a scoring champion since Madison's Kelsey Block won the title with 15.8 per game in 2012.

Madison and Switzerland County each had five players among the top 20 scorers in the area with Southwestern and Trimble County each with four and Shawe two. Thomas led all seniors in scoring, Wilcoxson was the top junior, Lynch (8.3) was the top scoring sophomore and Ginn (5.6) was the top freshman.

TEAM WRAP-UPS

MADISON CUBS

Final Record: 14-9

Highest Moment: Madison blitzed Brownstown from the start, leading 20-2 after the first quarter to pull off the upset of the Class 3A No. 10 Braves om Jan. 7.

Lowest Moment: Madison is never in the game as Class 3A No. 3 Silver Creek rolls to a 70-55 win on Jan. 14.

Outlook: Madison was knocked out by Silver Creek in the opening round of the tournament, but with three starters back — including Player of the Year Jade Nutley — the Cubs should be one of the top teams in southeastern Indiana next year and a serious contender to win their first sectional title since 2014.

SHAWE HILLTOPPERS

Final Record: 8-15

Highest Moment: Shawe opened the sectional on Feb. 4 with a 43-22 win over Medora that was far more lopsided than the score indicated. The win marked the fourth-straight year that the Hilltoppers have won a tournament game.

Lowest Moment: An 80-40 loss to Crothersville on Dec. 23 was Shawe's fifth-straight and dropped the Hilltoppers to 1-8 on the season.

Outlook: Second-year coach Terry King led the Hilltoppers to eight wins, their highest total in four seasons. With four starters back and several talented players moving up, Shawe has a chance to be even better next year.

SOUTHWESTERN REBELS

Final Record: 16-8

Highest Moment: A 43-40 win over Borden on Dec. 17 pushed Southwestern's record to 10-2, its best start to a season since 2008.

Lowest Moment: Southwestern entered the sectional as the favorite, but suffered a 47-36 loss to North Decatur in the opening round on Feb. 4.

Outlook: The Rebels nearly reversed their record from the year before and were the surprise team of southeastern Indiana, finishing second in the ORVC standings. With four starters back, Southwestern has its sights set on not only a conference crown, but its first sectional title since 2008.

SWITZERLAND CO. PACERS

Final Record: 15-9

Highest Moment: Switzerland County knocked off Trimble County 49-41 on Dec. 19 for its ninth-straight win and 10th in 11 games to open the season.

Lowest Moment: A 52-50 loss to Oldenburg on Jan. 23 was the Pacers' fifth in six games and seventh in nine games.

Outlook: The season ended up being disappointing for Switzerland, which was expected to compete for the sectional title but ended up getting upset instead. But even with the loss of all-time leading scorer Aleiah Thomas, the Pacers have plenty of young talent and should make a run at the sectional this year.

TRIMBLE CO. RAIDERS

Final Record: 12-16

Highest Moment: The Raiders defeat Henry County 59-41 on Feb. 14 for their eighth win in the past 10 games.

Lowest Moment: A 58-37 loss to Oldham County in the district tournament on Feb. 25 was the Raiders' fourth-straight and ended their season.

Outlook: Trimble County doubled its win total from the year before and with virtually everybody back, should return back to its winning ways next year. An All "A" Classic Eighth Region crown, and even a district title, are not out of the question.

CDC's latest guidance could mean no sports for much longer

By TIM REYNOLDS
AP Basketball Writer

The already-delayed professional sports seasons in North America could be on hiatus for significantly longer than first planned after federal officials said Sunday that they recommend all in-person events involving 50 people or more be called off for the next eight weeks.

That's twice as long as the 30-day shutdowns that the NBA, NHL and Major League Soccer decided to put into place last week in response to the global coronavirus pandemic that has already made a deep impact on the U.S. financial markets and has been blamed for at least 64 deaths in this country.

Major League Baseball also was going with what essentially was a 30-day shutdown after canceling the rest of spring training and pushing back the start of regular season play for two weeks; opening day was to have been March 26.

But new recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Sunday night seem to suggest that sports in this country could for all intents and purposes be gone until May, if not later.

"CDC, in accordance with its guidance for large events and mass gatherings, recommends that for the next 8 weeks, organizers ... cancel or postpone in-person events that consist of 50 people or more throughout the United States," it said. "Events of any size should only be continued if they can be carried out with adherence to guidelines for protecting vulnerable populations, hand hygiene, and social distancing."

The eight-week window easily exceeds what would have been the remainder of the NBA and NHL regular seasons, plus would cover about the first 25% of the MLB season — or roughly 40 games per team. It would also cast serious doubt on the ability to hold other major U.S. sporting events as planned, such as the Kentucky Derby in early May.

The NBA was already bracing to play games without fans in arenas, something that would have started late last week had a player -- Rudy Gobert of the Utah Jazz -- not tested positive for the virus, COVID-19. Utah teammate Donovan Mitchell and Detroit's Christian Wood have tested positive since, but Gobert's diagnosis was enough for the league to say that it was suspending play.

"I've been feeling a little better every single day," Gobert said in a video posted Sunday. He added, "I wish I would have took this thing more seriously."

Later Sunday, a person with knowledge of the matter said the NBA has sent teams a memo saying players can leave their home markets during the shutdown if they so choose — yet another clear sign that the game's hiatus is not ending anytime soon. But if those players do leave for another market, they must do so after coordinating plans with their teams and medical advisers.

The memo also told teams formal practices will remain off indefinitely, individual workouts at team facilities may continue and detailed other safeguards teams should be taking at this point, according to the person who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the memo had not been released publicly.

The NBA has already been asking teams to share availability for their arenas through the end of July, a sign that the league is prepared to extend the season at least that long if necessary — and those moves came a couple of days before the CDC made its latest recommendation. The NBA regular season was to have ended April 15 and the NBA Finals were to have started June 4, with the season done on or before June 21.

It's not just the team sports that have been shut down: Pro tennis and golf have basically been called off for the next several weeks, with such marquee events as Indian Wells and the Miami Open in tennis and The Players Championship and Masters in golf either canceled or postponed. The NCAA men's Division I college basketball tournament — March Madness — was to release its bracket Sunday and start the now-canceled 68-team tournament Tuesday. The women's Division I tournament was to have started this week.

They've all been called off, as have all other winter- and spring-sport seasons at all levels of the NCAA. Most high school state associations have also had to cancel seasons and championships as well. Some minor-league hockey leagues have canceled seasons.

No decision on Olympics yet

SYDNEY (AP) — The leader of the IOC's coordination commission for the Tokyo Olympics said there is no May deadline to cancel the games and he remains confident the event will go ahead despite sports coming to a virtual standstill globally amid the coronavirus outbreak.

John Coates, who will have to go into government-mandated self-isolation when he returns to Australia this week from Olympic business in Europe, told the Sydney Morning Herald newspaper: "It's all proceeding to start on the 24th of July."

Dick Pound, a former IOC vice president, said in an interview with The Associated Press last month that the end of May loomed as a possible deadline for the IOC to make a call on the Tokyo Olympics.

But Coates, an IOC vice president and head of the Australian Olympic Committee, told the paper in a telephone interview from Switzerland that the IOC didn't recognize the deadline and he thought Pound had backed away from it, too.

"It's never been the IOC's position. It was Dick's idea. There is four months to go," Coates told the newspaper on Monday.

More than 169,000 people have been infected and 6,500 killed in the coronavirus pandemic. The COVID-19 illness causes mild or moderate symptoms for most, but severe symptoms are more likely in the elderly or people with existing health problems. More than 77,000 people have recovered from it so far, mostly in China where the outbreak started late last year. Though China still has the most infections, a dozen other countries have more than 1,000 cases, mostly in Europe.

Coates was in Europe when the Australian government announced the mandatory two-week self isolation on all people arriving in the country after the weekend.

The latest restrictions, including bans on gatherings of more than 500 people, came in the wake of the cancellation of the Australian Grand Prix in Melbourne over the weekend, and the suspension of sporting events and large-scale gatherings in parts of the world affected by the virus outbreak.

The Olympics open on July 24, followed by the Paralympics on Aug. 25.

BRIDGE

IRELAND'S FAVORITE DAY OF THE YEAR

Today is St. Patrick's Day, named, as you all know, for the patron saint of Ireland. Despite Ireland's being the butt of countless jokes in Britain, many great things come from that country. Waterford glass and Guinness stout spring to mind.

There have been many talented Irish bridge players. Surely the most colorful was Monty Rosenberg, who died in 2002. He was a little guy who sat very quietly at the table, picking his opponents clean. Away from the table, he had a devious sense of humor.

The Irish finished third in the 1979 European Championship. This deal was Monty's best from that event.

At the other table, the Dutch North cautiously passed out East's four-spade opening. That contract drifted down two: poor compensation for a laydown slam in clubs or diamonds.

However, reaching either slam was easier said than done. Would you and your partner have managed it?

Monty was in five hearts: at first glance, a hopeless-looking contract. But Monty loved challenges. After winning the first trick with dummy's spade ace, Monty judged it was likely that East had a singleton heart honor. So, he led the heart seven from the dummy, East's ace collecting only low cards.

East continued with the spade queen. Monty ruffed, played a heart to the queen and cashed his six minor-suit winners. West was left with three trumps. The lead of another club forced West to ruff and lead away from his J-9 of hearts into declarer's K-10 tenace. Five hearts bid and made.

Canaan student eligible for state

The National Geographic Society named Silas Eaton, fifth grader at Canaan Community Academy as a semifinalist eligible to compete in the 2020 National Geographic GeoBee State Competition.

The GeoBee State Competition was supposed to be hosted at the Indiana University - Purdue University Indianapolis, but due to public health risks related to coronavirus (COVID-19), the National Geographic Society made the decision to cancel the in-person National Geographic State GeoBee scheduled for March 27. In its place, there will be the opportunity for State GeoBee qualifiers to take an online test on March 27 that is administered and proctored by the school GeoBee coordinator or another paid school employee.

This is the second level of the National Geographic GeoBee competition, which is now in its 32nd year. To determine each school champion, GeoBee competitions were hosted in schools throughout the state with students in fourth through eighth grades.

This year, an estimated 2.4 million students competed in the Geobee, with 8,661 school champions. School champions also took an online qualifying test, which was submitted to the National Geographic Society. Up to 100 top scoring students in each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Department of Defense Dependents Schools and the U.S. territories were invited to compete in the State GeoBees.

State champions will receive a medal, $1,000 in cash and other prizes, as well as a trip to Washington, D.C. to represent their state in the National Championship where they will compete for additional cash, awards and college scholarships. The second and third place State GeoBee winners will receive cash awards of $300 and $100, respectively.

The 2020 National Championship will take place May 18 through May 21 at National Geographic Headquarters. The National Champion will receive a $25,000 college scholarship, $1,000 in cash, a lifetime membership in the National Geographic Society and an all-expenses-paid Lindblad expedition to the Galápagos Islands aboard the "National Geographic Endeavour III." The second-place finisher will receive a $10,000 scholarship and $1,000 cash; the student finishing in third will receive a $5,000 college scholarship and $1,000 cash; and seven runners-up will each receive $1,000 cash.

Lawson at House of Representatives

Southwestern High School graduate Cass Lawson has joined members of the Indiana House of Representatives as a legal assistant during the 2020 legislative session.

Lawson, a Hanover native, is the daughter of Jeff and Wendy Lawson. She is attending the Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

"What really makes this experience impactful is building relationships with state representatives, who have invested so much of their time in our state," Lawson said. "It has been an honor to learn about the legislative process and to witness it firsthand."

As a legal assistant with the Indiana House of Representatives, Lawson helps with all of the legal aspects of making laws as well as organizing and presenting resolutions.

Each year, the House of Representatives offers paid internship opportunities and seasonal staff positions to college students, law-school students, graduate students and recent college graduates for the duration of the legislative session. For more information and to apply for a House Republican internship position during the 2021 legislative session, go to www.IndianaHouseRepublicans.com/internship

Finding forgiveness for abusive father through letter writing

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I have managed to overcome an abusive childhood, and I'd like to share with you how I did it at age 42, which, unfortunately, was 22 years after my abuser, my father, died.

My father had been very abusive but also very loving. As a child, and then as a teenager, this "dual personality" was very hard to deal with.

As an adult, I finally understood that my dad, as a young marine in World War II, had been very badly injured. This injury, apparently, turned his life around — in an unpleasant direction.

Somewhere in my studies on abusive parents, I read that if you could not meet the offender/parent face-to-face, or if they were not alive, writing a letter to them and airing all your grievances might help the recipient to understand and forgive the behavior.

I did this. In my letter, I said how much I loved him, even through all the abuse, and how I finally understood that his past had probably caused him to have an issue not understood at the time: post-traumatic stress disorder. I emphasized in the letter that I understood how he had attempted to combat his mental situation with alcohol, to an extreme.

By the time I had laid out ALL the incidents that I could vividly remember, and honestly accepted blame where I was the responsible party, I then looked at what I had written. As an adult, I saw, clearly, that even though he was to blame for the cruelty, at the same time, he was not to blame, due to the unnamed problem (PTSD). I could now understand that he could not always control his reactions to my childish behavior.

I hope I've explained this clearly. My point is this: I unloaded my heart into this letter, said all the things I had never been able to say to him while he was alive and cleansed my soul of the pain I had endured. At the same time, I forgave him for his responses, because I could now understand he was clueless as to how he could have controlled and healed himself.

I firmly believe that he did his very best with what knowledge he had at the time.

If others who deal with this dilemma were able to write a letter, as I did, it may help them to heal. The purpose of my letter was to heal myself, which it did — completely. The purpose was not to heal my dad; it was way too late for that, as it usually is.

Unfortunately, writing letters will not heal all people. His abuse toward me was never intentional, as some cases are.

My heart goes out to those who have lived through intentional abuse. For that, I have only compassion for the victims. For the perpetrators, there is no explanation, no acceptance, no forgiveness from me. Others, who are much better than me, might be able to find forgiveness.

I pray that this suggestion may help others, as it did me. I am now 73 years old and have not felt any further problems from my past. Thank you very much for your column, your love and understanding, and your help to others. — Found a Way to Heal

Dear Found a Way to Heal: Congratulations on taking the initiative to discover a way to heal your childhood trauma. Your letter touches on a very important realization; namely, that when people know better, they do better. Sadly, because of your father's PTSD, he might not have known what he was doing, and he didn't have the tools to cope with his own trauma. The fact that you were able to forgive him and heal yourself is outstanding. What a gift your letter is for others in similar situations.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now!
